

Conclusion

A career in the maritime industry is a rewarding one

The opportunities for travel, financial reward and job satisfaction are enormous as a crew member on a commercial vessel. Additionally, the camaraderie that exists in a crew, combined with a healthy outdoor environment, present the new crew member with many opportunities for professional and personal reward.

However, such a rewarding work environment can only exist if it is a safe one where everybody knows their duties and carries them out responsibly.

As a newcomer to a vessel make sure that you take an active role in creating a safe and professional workplace by taking responsibility for your own education, looking after and maintaining the seaworthiness of the vessel and fostering a positive culture onboard.

QPort Marine Services Est. 21 years

Contract and Charter of Commercial Marine Floating Plant, Services and Logistics.

Phone: 07 3893 0066 Email: info@qportmarine.com.au

www.qportmarine.com.au

