PO Box 2595, Brisbane, Queensland. 4001.

The maps contained in each free booklet of the Beacon to Beacon Guides are based on information that is as accurate as possible at the time of publication. You should regularly check the Maritime Safety Queensland website (www.msg.qld.gov.au) and download the latest booklet for the areas that you intend to travel. The maps are updated regularly with a revision date shown for each map. Alternatively, you may update your own copy by checking the same website for Notices to Mariners. The maps are aimed at recreational users of Queensland waterways and should be used as a guide for navigation. Care should be taken when navigating outside waterways not marked by navigation aids. For comprehensive navigation charts for offshore areas, you should use official charts as published by the Australian Hydrographic Service (www.hydro.gov.au).

You may print for free as many copies of the booklet and/or maps as you need. The maps are designed for inserting into your own clear plastic A4 size “envelopes” available from most newsagents or department stores.
