Any person operating a ship towing anyone by a line attached to the ship (including for example a person water skiing or riding on a toboggan or tube) in the waters listed below endangers marine safety except where the person is operating a recreational ship that is 4.3 metres or shorter in length that is towing only one person.

Mooloolah River 28/02/1997

Waters in the Mooloolah River from and including the waters 700 metres upstream of the confluence of the river with Mountain Creek to the waters 3.7 kilometres upstream of the confluence of the river with Mountain Creek.

No more than one (1) vessel towing anyone by a line attached to the ship (including for example a person water skiing or riding on a toboggan or tube) is to operate at any one time, in the waters listed below.

Avington Waterhole 11/11/2005

The waters of Avington Waterhole, Barcoo River

A person must not operate a ship in the waters listed below in a way that could be described as freestyling, whether engaged in towing a device or otherwise, so that the ship's course or speed is insufficiently predictable to allow masters or other ships to readily decide what course and speed to take to avoid a collision with the ship at any time.

Goondiwindi 17/01/2014

The waters within the Goondiwindi Natural Heritage and Water Park.
